

FREE Course for Judges on Digital Searches and Seizures

Seven spaces remaining for this conference.

The Fourth Amendment: Search and Seizure of Computers and Digital Evidence for Trial and Appellate Judges.

This two day program focuses on the search and seizure of computers and digital evidence. It will be held at the University of Mississippi School of Law in Oxford, MS. The course includes:

- understanding the sources and types of digital evidence
- examination of the principal approaches courts take to the search and seizure of digital evidence
- examination of the application of Fourth Amendment principles to various locations of digital evidence, including computers, cell phones, remote storage, and the Internet
- examination of Fourth Amendment applicability doctrines, including standing, voluntary exposure, and the private search doctrine
- examination of Fourth Amendment satisfaction doctrines, including warrant issuance and review, search incident to arrest, and probable cause.

Upcoming Conference Dates: September 20-21, 2012

Scholarship Information: This course is funded in part by a grant by Mississippi State University and offers the following scholarships to 22 trial or appellate judges to attend: free tuition and materials; and reimbursement of up to $250.00 for travel and lodging expenses. Lunch and refreshment breaks on both days of the conference are sponsored by Symantec.

For more information, including agendas and registration, please visit www.NCJRL.org or contact Celeste Sherwood at (662) 915-6897 or celeste@olemiss.edu

If you are accepted to the conference simply email us the confirmation and we will assist you with travel, lodging and meals. Email Kim at kwoods@idcourts.net